FINAL REJECTION

The rejection over Barbour et al (US 6,318,828) and Tsuji (US 6,494,559). are withdrawn in view of the amendments to the claims are the arguments presented in the amendment.

Claim Rejections

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 1, 4-8, 16-17, 19 and 21-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Correction or clarification is required.

In claim 1, it is unclear how the recitation "conversion means" on line 14 and "acquisition means" on line 17 is read on the preferred embodiment. Insofar as understood, such means are seen on the drawings. The same is true for claims 16, 19, 21 and 22.

The remaining claims are dependent from the above rejected claims and therefore considered indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 5-8, 16-17, 19-22 and 24 are rejected under 35 USC 102 (e) as being anticipated by Saruta (US 6,631,967).

As the best construed, Saratu discloses in Figures 1-6 a printing device comprising:

- a command generation means (40) for outputting a command for setting data for causing the printheads (107C, 107M) to perform predetermined processing;
- a carriage (101), which supports the printheads for scanning the printheads on the target printing medium (105, Figure 1);
- a control means arranged on a circuit substrate (board 205) of the said carriage (101), for receiving the command generated by said command generation means (40) and outputting a control signal corresponding to the command to the printheads, thereby controlling the printheads;
- wherein the printheads comprises storage means (80) for storing feature information; and
- wherein the control means including a receiving means (220) for receiving a command from the command generation means (40); a conversion means (200) for obtaining an address of said storage means (80) base on the command and output an access signal to acquisition means (200) for acquiring information corresponding to the access signal. It is noted that the controller (200) performs both converting function of a decoder converting the address of the storage element (80) and acquiring function since it is coupled to the storage element (80) to read and writ data into the storage element (80), see lines 40-62, column 2 of page 14;
- wherein the command generated by said the regeneration means (40) includes a command for driving and controlling the printhead (107C, 107M);
- wherein said command generation means generates a second command to shift register (130) on the basis of a result acquired from the printhead (107C, 107M) in accordance with a first command, and outputs the second command to the printhead (107C, 107M); and
- wherein the printing element comprises a heating element, and performs printing by discharging ink from an orifice arranged in correspondence with the heating element.

Response to Applicant's Arguments

The applicant's arguments with respect to the prior art rejection have been carefully considered and have been traversed in view of the new grounds of rejection over Saruta reference.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. This claim is allowed because the prior art or record fails to suggest "said the conversion means has, in correspondence with each of a plurality of types of printheads, a table which makes the information specified by the command and a storage address correspond to each other, and generates the access signal by looking up a table corresponding to a mounted printhead" in combination as claimed.

Claims 23 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. This claim is allowed because the prior art or record fails to suggest "the conversion means comprises a table which makes information specified by the command and a storage address in said storage means correspond to each other" in combination as claimed.

CONCLUSION

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
